Chilcomb Oak - Product Overview

Natural variation

Due to the nature of the product there will be variations in the Oak colour and grain, all Oak is selected to a strict criteria to ensure the best level of consistency whilst retaining a natural beauty and aesthetic a real wood product should have. This includes keeping knots within the timber to a minimum and using the same mix of straight / half-crown grain as standard Chilcomb.

Our own photography demonstrates the level of natural variation you will see within the range. Expect to discuss this with your customers.

No two SKUs will be the same.

Note, the Chilcomb Oak is suited to our Natural Oak cabinet and other oak cabinet accessories.

Robust design & construction

Like our engineered Oak flooring, Chilcomb Oak is also engineered to ensure the range meets the demands of a lifetime of use.

We have constructed:

- The frame from solid oak, lipping the edges and veneering the face and centre panel to ensure the best level of consistency in colour and finish.
- The solid oak lipping means the colour and finish is controlled and consistent across faces, whilst providing additional construction stability
- The joints are butt & scribed with additional dowelling to ensure the frontals remain stable though the supply chain, to the customers home and the life of the kitchen.
