HOWDENS

Your very own

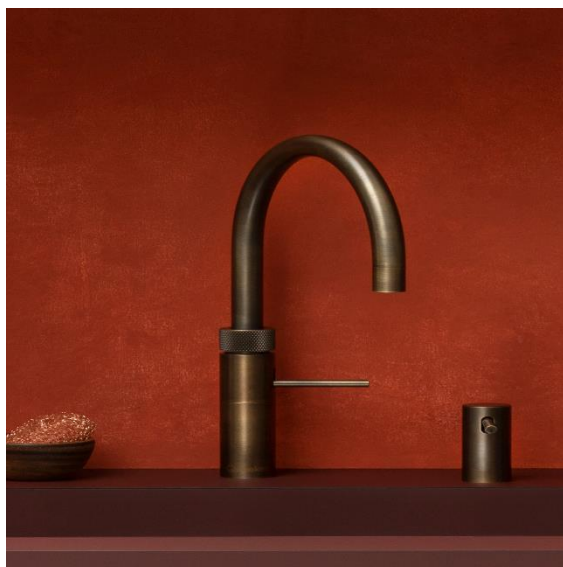

The Fusion and Classic Fusion Quooker taps in brass patina are like a good bottle of wine or a handbag made of the best leather: give them time to mature and they just keep getting more and more beautiful. And they become so much more your own.

Patina is a layer that develops on brass due to oxidation. It slowly changes colour, turning lighter or darker brown in different spots. This can be affected just by touching the material. Wherever your fingertips grab the tap, the surface will discolour. Because of this natural process, your tap becomes much more than a practical kitchen tool: it is now a personal ornament for the countertop.

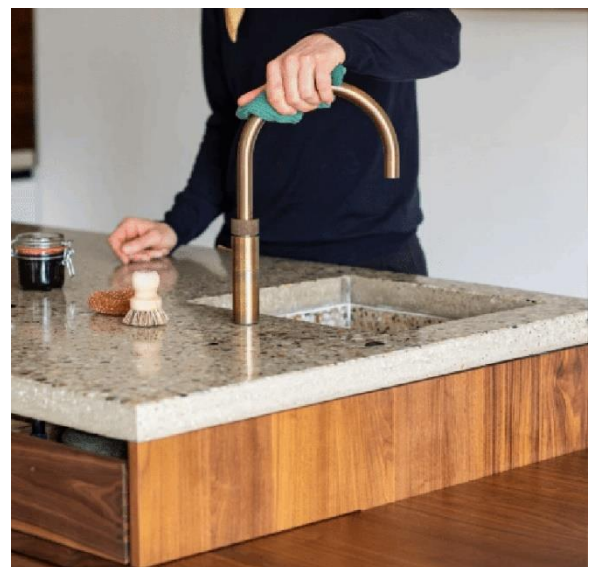

Use only warm water and a soft cloth to clean the Fusion or Classic Fusion brass patina tap or the soap dispenser - do not use household cleaners. Do you want extra protection for your tap? Rub it with a layer of beeswax every three or six months.

With Quooker you get all from one tap: 100°C boiling, warm and cold water. If you combine it with the CUBE tank, also chilled and sparkling water.
